

WSU Women of Distinction and Woman of the Year Awards

The rich tradition of women's contributions to Washington State University encompasses teachers and scholars, staff and advisors, students and alumni, administrators and regents, and volunteers and friends. The WSU Women of Distinction and Woman of the Year Awards are presented annually during National Women's History Month to recognize the achievements and contributions of women to the academic and local community, and to our society.

Women of Distinction awardees usually include an alumna, an employee (faculty or staff), a student (undergraduate or graduate), and a woman not affiliated with WSU. All nominees for Women of Distinction awards are eligible for the Woman of the Year Award, and nominations from all WSU campuses and locations, as well as self-nominations, are encouraged.

TIME AND PLACE OF AWARD PRESENTATION

The awards will be presented at the Women's Recognition Celebration on March 9, 2020, in the CUB M.G. Carey Senior Ballroom. The Women of Distinction and Woman of the Year awardees will be announced in the WSU Insider.

HISTORY AND THEME

The month of March was designated National Women's History Month after the 1987 passage of a Congressional resolution. Each year, this time is set aside to recognize and celebrate women of all races, ages, cultures, ethnic traditions, and ways of life.
